Which Way Home?

Several Years ago, our English teacher tired hard to get us develop some link between what we learned in class and our immediate environment. One day, she proposed that each student make a sketch of the school and then draw a map of the town. After drawing the map, we were to write a short paragraph giving directions from school to home. Youness, one of my classmates, failed repeatedly to figure out how to write the directions to his house despite the teacher's help.

Ms Nejjari, our teacher, became angry. She finally asked Youness with a bit of disbelief: "How do you get home after school?" He looked at her with a straight face and a twinkle in the eye, and then said: "Well, I take the bus, Miss!"
